ENGLISH MILITANT SUFFRAGE
GETTE'S CASE DECIDED QUICKLY
BY IMMIGRATION BOARD.

IS ORDERED DEPORTED

Verdict is Reached Three Hours After
Her Vessel Docks at New York Harbor—Talks to Reporters on Suffrage Cause.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, who arrived here today for a lecture tour, was ordered deported by the immigration authorities within a little less than three hours after the vessel upon which she came had docked. The special board of inquiry which decided her case, voted not to admit her to the country under bond, but to send her back to France forthwith.

Will Appeal Case.
Mrs. Pankhurst's lawyer, Herbert Reeves, announced his intention of appealing the case immediately to Commissioner General Caminetti. Mr. Reeves said he would seek to have his client admitted to this country under bond so that she may be able to fulfill her engagement to speak at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the New York suffrage leader, who was to have been Mrs. Pankhurst's hostess, was prepared to give bond up to $100,000 for Mrs. Pankhurst's good behavior while in America. Under the ruling of the special board she will not be permitted to do so and Mrs. Pankhurst must remain at Ellis Island until the board's decision is reversed by the authorities at Washington.

Purpose to Lecture.
Mrs. Pankhurst told the immigration officials that her purpose in coming to America was not to advocate the militant methods for obtaining suffrage, but to lecture upon the history and progress of the cause in England.

Mrs. Reeves filed his appeal by long distance telephone with Commissioner General Caminetti and announced that the commissioner general would hear the case tomorrow.

Mr. Reeves said he would leave for Washington tonight with him a copy of the minutes of the special board.

Mrs. Pankhurst was detained aboard the liner Providence when it docked. A special tour was commissioned to take her to Ellis Island. She was placed aboard and taken to the immigration station there. A special board of inquiry, it was announced, would convene speedily and render a verdict some time today.

Question Before Board.
This board set itself to determine if Mrs. Pankhurst's conviction in England was for a crime involving moral turpitude. If so, she would come within the class excluded by the immigration act. If not, the act does not apply. To inspectors who questioned her aboard the Providence, Mrs. Pankhurst asserted her conviction was for a political offense and that it was generally understood that her sentence had expired when she left England for France, although she had not been notified formally.

For a quarter of an hour the militant leader was questioned by immigration inspectors in the white and gold music room of the liner. A curious crowd of passengers eager to learn the disposition of her case trooped in through the doors and pressed the two score newspaper reporters forward till they surrounded the little group.

Marinette, Oct. 18.—Francis B. McManamy, of Oshkosh, representing the state board of control, District Attorney Davis of Green Bay and Sheriff Kolecki of Brown county with the aid of the local officers early this morning took into custody Harriet Wilmer, aged 19, in Menominee and took her to Green Bay after making a formal charge.

The arrest is one of the first developments in a sensation at Green Bay that may result in the charge of infanticide against one or more women.

It is said that five girls and a woman alleged to have been the head of a private orphanage, are being held at Green Bay until the authorities get more evidence.

A sister of the girl arrested here, Clara Wilmer, is among those being held. The state board of control has been making a quiet investigation for several months and a probe culminated last night with the arrest of the woman stated.

The authorities are trying to learn what became of children alleged to have been born at the Green Bay orphanage.

RUMOR THAT HUERTA EXPECTS TO RETIRE IS GIVEN CREDENCE

DICTIONARY'S IMMEDIATE RETIREMENT
FROM MEXICAN AFFAIRS
CONSIDERED PROBABLE.

MATTER OF SUCCESSOR

Lack of Agreement on Persons to Succeed Him As a Candidate
Delays His Resignation—Pressed by His Friends.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Oct. 18.—Possibility of Huerta's immediate retirement commended foremost attention in the Mexican situation here today and administration officials were awaiting advice to supplement those of late yesterday which suggested very strongly that the Mexican provisional president had been deterred only for lack of agreement and a man to succeed him.

Blanquet, minister of war, one of the group who acted with Huerta in the downfall of Madero, was named as a successor but is not approved here. Diplomats also were of the opinion that Blanquet was ineligible, because he was born in Spain and the Mexican constitution demands that the president be a native-born Mexican. Blanquet could relieve the situation, with the United States also was discussed.

Situation is Complex.
Reports of Huerta's impending retirement, rumors of death plots against Felix Diaz, a rival presidential candidate, and the attitude of foreign governments which already have recognized Huerta, and some of which are regarded as sympathizing with the position of the United States, all served to make the present situation more complex.

"President Wilson went off to the golf links early as his week-end custom and Secretary Bryan was out of the city.

Despite the lack of advice here there was a feeling of confidence in administration circles that Huerta was being pressed by his friends to retire and officials here admitted that a change in administration in Mexico City was expected.

The attitude of Great Britain, according to those who know the views of the Washington administration, is causing some concern.

It is possible that diplomatic inquiries may be made to Ambassador Page as to the intentions of the British foreign office.

Conference at Berlin.
Berlin, Oct. 18.—Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, summoned by the German foreign minister, Gottlieb von Xarow, to a special conference at the foreign office, arrived here today from his villa in southern Germany where he has been spending his vacation. During his stay here a nation boom is whether he received in audience by Emperor William. Count Bernstorff said today he did not know the reason for the dispatch of the summons to him. A belief is current, however, that the situation in Mexico will be discussed at the conference. The new American tariff may also be discussed.

Report Barbarous Revolt.
Douglas, Ariz., Oct. 18.—The ancient custom of herding victory by the retreating federal army and captured among others, Perfecto Torres, a federal commander. The Indians put him to death and returned with his head parading it about the streets on a pole.

Torres, it is reported, had threatened to execute any constitutionalists who fell into his hands.

Felix Diaz at Havana.
Havana, Cuba, Oct. 18.—General Felix Diaz arrived here today from Europe on board the steamer Cerezo, coupled by a special train to the dock of the vessel by Senor de la Garza who was recently appointed Mexican consul general at Paris and who endeavored to persuade him to discontinue his journey to Mexico to which advice General Diaz refused to listen.

General Diaz told the Associated Press that he would proceed immediately to Mexico and had no intention of abandoning his presidential aspirations. He said he was fully convinced that the election would be held on October 26th.

General Diaz apparently was in excellent health. On account of rumors that an attempt would be made by Mexican conspirators to assassinate General Diaz in Havana, a strong force of police was sent aboard the steamer immediately on her arrival.

JOY MARKS ARRIVAL OF RESCUED WOMEN

Eleven Survivors of Volturno Fire
Given Enthusiastic Welcome on Arrival at New York.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Oct. 18.—The arrival today of eleven women saved from the burning Volturno by the freighter Rappahannock was the signal for the widest scene of joy and thanksgiving witnessed here since the rescuing fleet began to bring in the survivors. The women were transferred at Halifax from the Rappahannock to the liner Florio, which docked in Brooklyn.

Ten of them were young girls, the eleventh was Mrs. Peia Polack and the scene at the dock as she met her three children whom she had given up for lost brought tears to the eyes of the immigrant officers.

Mrs. Polack was the last woman to leave the Volturno. Rappahannock boats believing that her children already were there. When the boats put off from the blazing ship and she found that the little ones were left behind she became hysterical and the boat crew had all they could do to keep her from jumping overboard. She remained in a hysterical condition during all the journey to New York. Here for the first time she learned that the children had been saved by one of the boats from the Koonland. They met her at the dock with their father an east side merchant. The ten girls were taken care of by the Jewish Immigrant Society.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Calumet, Mich., Oct. 18.—An attempt was made to blow up a Keweenaw Central passenger train taking forty-two mine guards to the Mohawk mine today. The guards and other passengers on the train probably owe their lives to Engineer Stephen Cocking, who detected the burning fuse and stopped his engine in the nick of time. A section of the track was blown out.

Following the explosion several hundred strikers surrounded the train. The strikers were in a threatening mood, but trouble was averted by the arrival of a force of mounted troops who pushed the crowd back. The soldiers are in control of the situation. The affair probably will hasten the military plans to send a stronger force of men into the Keweenaw district.

THINK FINAL VOTE ON CURRENCY BILL IS NEAR IN SENATE

PRESIDENT AND REPUBLICANS

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

President Holds His First Conference
With a Republican Senator on the Currency Situation.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Exchanges between President Wilson and Senator Republicans have placed the currency situation in a position where definite agreements for a report from the banking committee and possibly a final vote on passage is in sight. November 10th is the date tentatively set for the committee.

Among Democratic leaders the idea is gaining that the president might consent to a recess of congress if the senate agreed to vote on the bill on a certain day.

Confers With Nelson.
Pressure is being brought from all quarters to release a tired congress for a few weeks before the regular session begins.

Early today the president conferred with Senator Nelson. It was his first conference with a Republican on the currency situation. It is understood that the president was encouraged to believe that the Republicans of the committee would work with the Democrats.

Secretary McAdoo today reaffirmed he had no intention of resigning.

Harbor of Vera Cruz and Admiral Fletcher.

The harbor of Vera Cruz, Mexico, soon will present a very warlike appearance. Already a squadron of four American battleships, commanded by Admiral Fletcher, patrols the harbor, and the war department has determined to send on October 29 four more ships to join this fleet. Germany also has sent a battleship and other European nations may follow suit if conditions get much worse.

Although most Americans have left Mexico, there is still considerable property there belonging to citizens of the United States. There are also many foreign residents in Mexico, and this accounts in part for the large force being maintained by this country at Vera Cruz.

President Wilson's course toward Huerta and his alleged government has been so thoroughly vindicated that he stands strong today in the estimation of Europe and the world.

The president's attitude also has placed the United States where almost any course it will take will be sanctioned by the rest of the world, even to the point of ultimate intervention, should that be decided upon.

WISCONSIN TENDENCY

Gives To Taxing District Right to Exempt Any Class of Property From Taxation.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Oct. 18, 1913.—It is of great significance, just at this time, when Wisconsin and other American states are drifting rapidly toward the single tax on land, that the most radical land reformers of England, led by David Lloyd George, condemn the single tax principle as "confiscatory." This is unquestionably, and Henry George in "Progress and Poverty," if one accepts his premises, argues, with unerring and powerful logic to just that end. If his argument means anything it means a virtual end to private property. To show that it is not just "social" changes, in California the legislature has submitted to a vote of the people in 1914, an amendment to the constitution, called, for popular effect, no doubt, a "home rule" amendment which would permit any county or taxing district, within a county, by vote of the people, to exempt any class of property from county or local taxes. That would open up remarkable possibilities in the same New York circular in which I find this amendment, and following it under the same significant heading of "Home Rule in Taxation," I find that:

"Wisconsin has also passed an amendment which will permit any county or other subdivision, by vote of the people to exempt any class of property from local taxation with the proviso that property exempted by a locality shall be assessed for county taxes and properly excepted by a county shall be assessed for state taxes. This amendment will have to be passed by another legislature (1915) before being submitted to the people."

It will be seen that Wisconsin is a close second to California in this sort of proposed home rule. I would suggest that people who own property, from a house or farm up, would do well to consult their lawyer as to the possibilities of such legislation. If it does open the way for confusion and trouble, I miss my guess, and it is, certainly, a clever opening wedge for further centralizing of tax payers in the state. The people who are "letting the sound of 'Home Rule' will find themselves increasingly taxed in Madison."

This is one of the 871 laws passed at the last session of the Wisconsin legislature that you probably haven't heard of. I advise you to "get busy" or have your attorney do so, for there were ten propositions for amending Wisconsin's constitution that have been prepared for the people to vote upon.

Secretary Fear's Figures.
After the Secretary of State Fear's explanations about the "information" given to the public and his assertion in the last of December, 1912, that the net disbursements of the state for the fiscal year 1912, ending June 30, of that year, though he didn't say so, were $13,700,000 in round figures and that about $2,000,000 were commonly added that were bookkeeping duplications, it appears from the recent report of State Treasurer Johnson, that he has actually paid out for the next fiscal year, 1913, ending the 30th of last June, $15,889,824.74, and he deducts the $4,191,000 returned to the counties for schools, etc., and gets a net of $12,698,824.74. This is $1,428,000 increase over Mr. Fear's figures of a year previous. But, as I have before pointed out, no body has any business to deduct what goes back to schools for all the reports of the State Tax Commission, or of a state expense. It is, for none of it ever gets back to the people who paid it.

So the repetition, so persistently adhered to by the Madison authorities that last session's appropriation was only $25,000,000, ignores the real facts. According to Treasurer Johnson, if this year's outgo was correctly given, and next year's is more, state expenses for 1914 and 1915 would exceed $33,779,000. On the bills passed exceed $36,000,000, and no amount of fumbling the cards will deceive the people. It is about time that they face the facts. I am figuring exactly as Mr. La Follette did in his first message as Governor when he criticized the business of Wisconsin began her history as a state. The first constitution, adopted in 1848, prohibited banks absolutely and our present constitution referred the subject to the people and it was not until 1912 that the people gave the legislature power to make laws on the subject. Somehow the people get an idea, about so often, or a part of them do, that the government can go into the banking business with safety. No scheme of finance can be more perilous. Money is power, in itself. All the people need is to see that it does not in addition to that power have a legislative "under" cloak. All that the government can do, no matter if it legislate until the hot place has a crust of ice on it, is to protect the people from crooked banking and crooked currency by making banks do business in the open, and by protecting the currency. Reports, frequently made public and correct, under penalties like the National Bank act, will do more to protect the people than any attempted control. The banks, like the railroads, have some trouble coming, and they will probably get it. Reform has got around to them, and they are inclined to be arrogant and the railroad managers have learned that arrogance is expensive. But the people will pay the bills, as usual, whatever it costs. They own the money. What the bankers actually own is only a drop in the bucket. It is the poor devil with a mortgage on his house and the little business man who has to borrow $100 now and then and pay the bills, and it is the money of the people in savings banks and life insurance that builds the railroads, the electric roads, and the like. The bankers are just what they were in Christ's time, merely money changers.

Entitled to Gratitude.
This reminds me, that though the country does not seem to know it, the banks deserve a debt of gratitude, sitting on the lid, good and hard, for two years past. If they had not been conservative, we might have had a panic before this. Business is not brisk. Money is high the world over, and it is no time for people who have sense to rave heedlessly. I was told by a lumber dealer, whom I know well, and in whose business sense I have confidence, that he was on the Pacific coast recently, and was offered lumber at $3 a thousand, loaded on the cars. He bedrocks what is it? I am not interested either, for I am independently poor, but the fellow who thinks he can make money out of moonshine has no attractions for me, and I never had any patience with the fellow who thought he could run a legislative hold-up on somebody else and do anybody any good.

Labor's Share.
(Advertisement.)
In the annual report of President Underwood to the Director of the Erie Railroad Company, for the fiscal year ending June 30th last, the president says: "$27,091,186.10 equivalent to 63.31 per cent of the total operating expenses, was paid by the company to labor, being distributed among 41,208 employees," and the next and closing paragraph is characteristic of the spirit of the Erie, "The efficient services of the officers and employees are hereby acknowledged." That explains some important elements of the Erie's rejuvenation under this administration. It pays to be human, as well as to be a driving energetic master of affairs. I may not be thanked for my opinion but I am doing this "labor's share" myself.

Short Notes.
Oshkosh is in fashion. Its assessment is about 29 per cent bigger than a year ago.
Star tax levy last year was $2,556,711. This year we are told it will be $3,500,000.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the state expended $50,000 on roads. Next year it will spend $400,000 and build 1,600 miles of road. Where's the speed limit?

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

Six of the Training School graduates out of the twenty-six were not present at the meeting on Saturday. Principal Larson addressed a mother's meeting in the school taught by Minnie Milbrandt, Tuesday afternoon.

W. E. Larson, state inspector of rural schools, is preparing answers to several of the questions asked Saturday, and his discussions will be presented in the school notes from time to time. County teachers please take notice.

Only thirty-five rural teachers out of a total of one hundred and fifty were sent in questions for the question-box. The rest were furnished by the training school faculty. The training school would like to know why more teachers did not respond. The letter was worded in an urgent form, but urgent language don't seem to count.

The training school had a most enjoyable picnic Monday afternoon. Dinner was served in the grove at the state school, after which Superintendent Hooper conducted the students to the various points of interest at the institute. The class work was exceedingly interesting and the music was much appreciated.

The principal addressed an evening meeting Friday in the school building. Edith Cooper, the topic being "Country Life at the Country School."

Little booklets on "Postal Information" issued by the post-office department will be used to give the training school students some useful knowledge which many people fail to possess.

There are one hundred and fifty-nine teachers teaching in the country schools of Rock county. Of this number only seventy-one, less than half, were present all day at the rural teachers' meeting on Saturday. Ninety-four were present on the forenoon and eighty-one were in attendance in the afternoon. Evidently twenty-three who were present in the forenoon "skipped" the afternoon session. A few teachers got there about one hour after the program. These figures are very interesting to save the least. Where were all the young women who did not put in an appearance at all? And why did some come for only the forenoon roll call? Is the poor condition of some rural schools due to the poor teaching found there?

If the teaching is poor it is because the teachers do not possess the progressive spirit. There is no use of making matters. The county superintendent knows the names of all the faithful ones and also the delinquents. Unless those who were absent have good excuses, what recognition can they expect from their superintendent in every respect. They and their schools are the losers.

The training school principal will conduct evening meetings during the next two weeks at the schools taught by Helen Gray and Cora Thorsen. Miss Antoinette Schloesser of Madison will enter the training school at the beginning of the second quarter on November 3.

Nellie Hendrickson attended the wedding of a relative at Orfordville on Thursday.

W. E. Larson, state inspector of rural schools has requested that copies of all the training school notes, circular letters, and the like, be sent to him. He will prepare a bulletin on training schools during the coming year.

About thirty Wisconsin high schools have organized teachers' training departments. It remains to be seen whether high schools can do this work successfully.

The Milwaukee meeting is going to be a record-breaker. Teachers should attend if possible. It will be well worth while.

The psychology class has been making a special study of "habit" this week.

The response to roll call this week was the description of a famous picture.

One of the first effects of the new consolidation law is seen in the Barron county. In the town of Eagle Point five school districts have united and are erecting a $4000 school house at a central point. Half of the expense of this building is borne by the state. The children will be transported to the school.

Now why doesn't Rock county get busy and do likewise? It is badly needed in this county.

ADJUSTABLE STRAP HANGERS

Backed by a Spring They Suit All Sizes of Individuals.

Mr. Commencement is at last to get some consideration at the hands of the street car corporations. If the transportation companies of the great cities and that they cannot see their way to the extent of granting him a seat on at they abstract his nickel from his pocket, they are at least going to provide him with a strap hanger which fits his physique like the "paper on de veil." The idea has been recently received in the patent office and the Seattle genius who conceived the idea and perfected it has been rewarded with a patent, but his greater reward will come later when countless generations will rise and hail him as a benefactor.

The essential feature of the adjustable strap hanger is a coiled spring mounted on a horizontal bar, and from the other end of this bar, passing over a roller, the loop handle of the hanger depends at a point easy within the reaching range of the six-footer, but when Mr. Four-feet arrives on the scene he gives a leap, seizes the strap, and if fate is good to him, through the action of the spring, he is gently deposited on the floor with the ease and grace of a footlight fairy. If, however, the spring proves as obstinate as the usual car window the passenger will swing in mid-air until he arrives at his destination, and then he will politely call the conductor and ask to be taken down.

The adjustable strap hanger will find other uses. For instance, it will take the place of a cradle and will be found a boon to mothers with young babies. The most recalcitrant infant will be soothed to heavy-sleeping sleep when swinging on the end of one of these springs. It will also take the place of a bundle rack and keep packages off the floor by taking them to the ceiling and the woody individual in the late care, unable to stand or sit up has but to hook himself to this device and he will be held bolt upright without regard to the character or condition of his legs.

Checking Profanity.
In an Edinburgh hotel the bar counter contains a slot, into which each visitor who is heard to swear must drop a penny, and a notice to that effect is displayed. These pennies are at intervals collected and sent to aid the funds of one of the local institutions.

HEADACHY, COSTIVE, BILIOUS,—"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, meagre Bowels are clogged—Cheer up!

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out with the system's regular excretion of blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

CALLED HOME TO EXPLAIN CHARGES

Mrs. Post Wheeler.

Post Wheeler, secretary of the American embassy at Rome, is returning to the United States on orders from the state department. Before being permitted to return he will have to explain charges that he has abused custom's privileges accorded to diplomatic representatives. Italy permits diplomats and their attaches to receive goods from other countries without paying duties, and unconfirmed rumors intimate that Wheeler is charged with having taken advantage of the diplomatic courtesy by turning it to his commercial advantage.

He is accompanied home by his wife, the former Hallie Ermine Rives.

USE OF THE REVOLVING FAN

Investigation Shows These Appliances Enormously Increase Bacterial Content of Air.

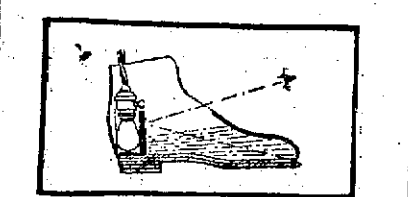

That the use of revolving fans enormously increases the number of bacteria in the air (though by what means we are not told) is shown by recent tests in France, according to the Hospital (London). Says this paper:

"The use of ventilators with revolving fans has become very common in large public buildings, especially restaurants and shops. In most cases these ventilators communicate with the outside, and they are installed, of course, with the idea of ventilating and purifying the air within by increasing the rate of exchange with the external atmosphere. But revolving fans are also frequently used, especially in hot weather, simply to produce a cooling effect by setting up a current of air inside. Drs. A. Sartory and A. Fliesser have examined the bacteriological effect of these fans and ventilators upon the atmosphere within, and have communicated their results to a recent meeting of the Societe de Biologie. They find that these appliances enormously increase the bacterial content of the air. Their experiments were numerous and varied, but it will suffice to refer to one or two. Thus in a restaurant of 400 cubic meters analysis of the air before the fan was working showed 12,500 bacteria per cubic meter; after working the fan for one hour, 23,000 bacteria, and after two hours, 43,000 bacteria. In another cafe of 600 cubic meters the number of bacteria rose from 12,000 to 39,000 after the fan was working for one hour. In every instance in fact, the number of bacteria per cubic meter was doubled, or even quadrupled. As the authors point out, with these facts such appliances cannot but be regarded as dangerous and detrimental to the public health."

It comprises a casing containing an electric light bulb, adapted to be inserted in the heel of a boot or shoe, and a mirror carried by the casing in front of the light. The parts are so arranged that the light rays pass below the mirror into the toe, and the shoemaker can examine this portion of the shoe by looking into the mirror.

Viennese Electric Fountain.

The city of Vienna possesses what is perhaps the most remarkable electric, or electrically lighted, fountain in existence. It is situated in the Schwarzenbergplatz. Underneath the fountain, in a huge cemented chamber, are placed twenty-seven reflecting lamps, capable of producing seventy different luminous and colored effects. The light is transmitted through the waters of the fountain. The light power of the plant is estimated as equal to 900,000,000 candles.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
A cross old woman of long ago
Declared that she hated noise;
"The town would be so pleasant, you know,
If only there were no boys."
She scolded and fretted about it till
Her eyes grew heavy as lead,
And then, of a sudden, the town grew still;
For all the boys had fled.
And all through the long and dusty street,
There wasn't a boy in view;
The baseball lot where they used to meet,
Was a sight to make one blue.
The cherries rotted and went to waste;
There was no one to climb the trees;
And nobody had a single taste,<
Save only the birds and bees.
There wasn't a messenger boy—not one—
To speed as such messengers can;
If people wanted their errands done,
They sent for a messenger man.
There was little, I ween, of frolic and noise;
There was less of cheer and mirth;
The sad old town, since it lacked its boys,
Was the dreariest place on earth.
The poor old woman began to weep,
Then awoke with a sudden scream:
"Dear me!" she cried, "I have been asleep.
And, oh, what a horrid dream!"
—St. Nicholas.

The dream of the "cross old woman" expresses the sentiment of a class of people who have no time for boys and this sentiment is shared by men more than women, because the heart of womanhood lies nearer the surface and her sympathies are more easily aroused.
It has been so long since some of us were boys, that we have forgotten the care-free period of life, except by contrast, and about the only pleasure we get out of the boy is by telling him what an easy time he has as compared to the hardships and privations of long ago.
If at all observing, you may have noticed that this line of talk never gets very far, and seldom arouses any sympathy. While you are painting the dreary picture of frontier life, he is putting in touches of color. The woods and stream appeal to him, and while he is obliged to satisfy ambition for a wild life by strutting around the back yard in an Indian costume, you enjoyed the real thing, and when your tale of woe is finished, if any response is elicited, he says: "Gee, dad, you ought to have had lots of fun when you was a boy. Sorry wasn't there."
The boy gets out of life about all there is in it, under almost any environment. In normal condition he is free from care and responsibility, as he should be. Before these are assumed, the faculty of the mind called judgment must be aroused and carefully developed, and until this is done, the boy of whatever age, is in no condition to assume burdens.
Some men never mature, so far as this faculty is concerned, and the criticism applied to them is, that their judgment is no better than a boy's. When the boy makes a mistake, we are free to say of him that he ought to have known better, and yet we overlook the fact that the willows of mature life are largely due to the same lack of judgment.

There are all kinds of men and women, but there is really only one kind of a boy. He is in a class by himself, free from notions of caste or aristocracy, full of conceit, yet a hale fellow well met with all his associates. Just one of God's human animals, turned loose, to get out of life all there is in sight, with no thought of the future, and no disposition to worry.

The making of men out of boys is not the work of the boy, and where the job is left largely in his hands, the finished product may present the stature of a man, and but little else. The transformation calls for the best there is in the home, the school, the church, society and the state, and with these great forces combined, the work is not always satisfactory.
The love of a mother is said to be like the love of God, because of its rare selfishness. It is more sacred to the boy because more tangible. She is ready to stand by him and forgive him, when he has passed the limit of all other endurance. The love of the father lacks the emotional element, because it is tempered with justice.

The boy needs the mother's love and tender solicitude, but he also needs the father's guidance and companionship to develop the best that is in him. No boy comrade takes the place of a father who is in sympathy with boyhood life, and the association means everything to the boy.
The most restless boy today is the boy on the farm, and the question of how to keep him there is one of the unsolved problems. There is a little incident that happened on a west-bound train, a time ago—related in Horard's Dairyman—which contains some helpful suggestions.
The writer, on his way to the Dakotas met a farmer on the train whom he knew. He seemed very much depressed and finally said: "I am on my way to Dakota for my boy who ran away from home two weeks ago." Then he admitted that the boy was honest and faithful, and he couldn't understand the trouble.

I asked him, "Do you keep any help?"
He said, "Yes, I keep two men by the year and other help in the rush of the season."
"Do you pay these men good wages?"
"Yes, one $25 and the other $40 per month and keep a horse for one of them."

"Do you pay your son a salary?"
"No, but he has the best home on earth."

"Does he own a horse and buggy of his own?"
"No, but I have some of the best horses in the county and one of the best buggies that money can buy and he knows he is welcome to them whenever he wants them."

"Do you expect your boy to be a slave to you until he is twenty-one, then turn him out in the world, a pauper to start life and make a home for himself?"
"No, I expect to give him a good start."

"Did you ever tell him that?"
"No, but he should expect that."
"Now, my friend, go hire that boy and pay him good wages; give him the best team on the farm and the best buggy and tell him just what you will do for him when he gets ready to start a home of his own, and you are getting off mighty cheap for the service he has rendered you, and you will have no trouble in getting the boy back."

He put out his hand and shook mine cordially and said he never looked at it in that light before.
A little of that, that a boy can call his own, looks mighty good to the boy on a farm. Try it and see the effect.
That boy's experience is all too common, not only on the farm, but everywhere else. Give the boy a chance, and the home will seem more attractive.

The time is coming when teachers will be selected, not because of textbook knowledge, but because of their love and sympathy for boys and their ability to discover the class of work to which the boy is best adapted. The boy don't know, and never will, without intelligent help, and the discovery is so important that it often means the difference between a successful career and a drifter.

The church is slowly discovering that it owes a duty to the boy, which has long been neglected, and so the catechism and religious training is reinforced by the gymnasium, the swimming pool, and through the lines of least resistance, the boy is held steady, until he comes to himself.
Society and the state are aroused as never before in the work of child welfare, and the boy is coming into his own. It is worth something to save men, but the saving of boys is more important, because life is ahead of them. The earliest time to destroy a habit is before it is formed, and the coming generation presents the great field of opportunity. Shall we improve it?

On the Spur of the Moment
The Village Store.
The village store has changed a pile, or so it seems to me,
It's different in stock and style from what it used to be.
The cracker barrel's vanished now,
The prunes are gone from sight,
There's nothing left around, I vow,
To tempt your appetite.

There's no place left for us to sit,
Who used to haunt that store;
Our wisdom and our native wit aren't heard there any more.
The place is all so quick and span and certified and smart,
It's simply broken up the clan and cracked each loafer's heart.
I know it's making money fast since it has changed its ways;
It never made much in the past, but those were good old days.
It was the meeting place, the hub, in that glad time of yore;
It was the forum of the club—and now it's just a store.
From the Hickeyville Clarion.
One thing that always pleases a country editor and makes him believe that life is worth living is to spend several years educating the people to trade at home and then have the merchants send to the city to have their job printing done.

Miss Amy Pringle says she will never wear hoopskirts, even if they do come into style again. She used to have one, but she sold the wire in it to the telephone company to construct the line between her home and West Hickeyville, thirteen miles.
A farmer's mule balked, in the road and remained balked, although the farmer did everything excepting build a fire under him. As he was about to resort to this method of starting the mule, the country doctor came along. The farmer asked the physician if he could give him something to start the mule. The doctor said that he could, and, reaching down in his medicine case, he gave the animal some powder. The head and started down the road at a lively gallop. The farmer looked at the doctor, "How much does that medicine cost," he asked. "Oh, about fifteen cents," replied the doctor. "Give me a quarter's worth quick," said the farmer. "I've got to catch that mule!"

"I have just returned from a trip to Europe," said he. "I was on a tramp steamer and had a terrible experience."
"Tell it," chorused several of the regulars who were grouped about him.
"Well, when we were two days out of Havre we ran into a tremendous storm and our ship began to leak. All day we worked the pumps. The water kept rising in spite of our efforts and the great waves toyed with that ship as though it were a peanut shell. Man after man was washed overboard. About 3 o'clock I was in the captain's cabin engaged in a game of California Jack with the captain and the first mate when the end came. The boat went down like a shot, head first, and every soul on board was drowned. The name of the ship was Nancy Lee and—"
"But," interrupted the bartender, "if everybody on board was drowned, you must have been drowned, too."
The stranger glared at the assembled throng and said, "I was."
Seven men took the pledge that day.

Synopsis of "HARD CASH"
—Gold!
Hard to gain, and hard to hold!
CAPTAIN DAVID DODD of the good ship "Agra" set sail for home carrying with him fourteen thousand pounds in hard cash. After nearly losing the money in a fierce battle with pirates and again during a violent storm, the captain gave a sigh of relief when he at length reached home and deposited his fortune in Hardie's bank, a conservative institution with an iron-clad reputation.
Unhappily, the captain's sense of security did not last long. Richard Hardie, the president of the bank, had been caught in the maelstrom of speculation. When Dodd deposited the fourteen thousand pounds, the bank was on the verge of bankruptcy. Learning of the danger to his hard-earned money, Dodd returned to the bank on the same afternoon and demanded its return. Hardie refused on the ground that it was after business hours, and Dodd fell to the ground in a fit of apoplexy. His mind was unhinged by the blow and he was removed to an insane asylum.
Alfred, Hardie's son, was deeply in love with Captain Dodd's daughter, Julia, entirely against the wishes of Richard who wished him to marry an heiress. Alfred overheard the scene between Dodd and Hardie and, outraged at his father's duplicity, demanded that the money should be returned.
With the money safely in his hands, and Dodd a maniac, Hardie was too hard pressed to let anything stand in the way of his urgent needs. Spurred on by an unconquerable ambition, he entered into an agreement with a dishonest doctor, and had Alfred inveigled from home and incarcerated in the same asylum with old Captain Dodd.
But there was another source of danger with which Hardie had not reckoned. Skinner, the old confidential clerk in his office had slyly taken the receipt from Dodd's hand as he lay in his apoplectic fit. Hardie, who had confidently believed the receipt was lost, was stunned when Skinner snavely informed him that it was in his possession, and coolly demanded blackmail.
Meanwhile Alfred Hardie and Captain Dodd had been suffering all the torments of the outrageous insane asylum system of the day. At last, they managed to escape together during a fire, and fled to the sea-coast. The sight of salt water restored the sailor's memory and he thought of his fourteen thousand pounds.
Skinner's opportune death and repentance put the receipt for the money in Alfred's hands. Together he and Dodd went to Hardie's office where they found a man overcome with remorse and shame, who was only too willing to make every restitution in his power.

Charles Reade wrote the novel, and Edison players produced the film, shown at the Lyric tomorrow.

HUNDRED THOUSAND FOR COUNTY ROADS

MORE THAN THAT AMOUNT TO BE AVAILABLE FOR WORK NEXT SEASON.

Town of Lima Does Not Expend Sum Allotted to It.—Bridge Work Late in Completion.

More than one hundred thousand dollars will be available for road building in Rock county in 1914, the having awarded aid in the sum of $44,889.36 in consequence of that amount being appropriated by the towns, and the same amount by the county. The state aid apportioned for next year is almost double that to be received this year, which will be $200,000. The levy last year was $20,325.00, this includes bridge money amounting to $3,250 and the state does not give more than 20 per cent aid for bridges whereas it gives 33 per cent toward highway construction. All the state aid for bridges will not be received this year because considerable work will not be completed. Not more than $375 state bridge aid has been received to date. Work on many of the bridges was started late and it is progressing slowly. It is expected that money for a new bridge in Spring Valley will not be received until this year and there is a large bridge in Plymouth not yet finished.

The town of Lima did not do any road work this year because of a misunderstanding and disagreement which arose as to where the money was to be expended. As this town appropriated $800 for road building it means that $2,400 for work in that township will be carried over to next year, and the other towns will practically use up their road funds by the close of the season.

COUNTY CAN OBTAIN AN AGRICULTURAL EXPERT BY ACTION

County Board May be Called Upon to Make Modest Appropriation Needed—States Gives Assistance.

Rock county may obtain the services of an agricultural representative of the county board of supervisors at its next session appropriate the modest sum necessary for the purpose. The state legislature at its last session not only gave county boards the right to make appropriations of this kind but provided that to supplement the funds provided by the county for agricultural development, state aid in the sum of one thousand dollars, which to be given each county in which the county board has made the required appropriation, and in which a county agricultural representative has been established. This state aid is to be expended under the direction of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin. During 1914 this work shall be organized in not to exceed ten counties of the state and not to exceed sixteen counties in 1915.

According to Chapter 611, Laws of 1913, which makes the provisions named, it shall be the duty of each county representative to advise and consult with individuals in reference to farming methods; to aid in the development and improvement of agriculture and country life conditions; to offer courses of instruction to young people in the county; to form the formation of co-operative enterprises; to give such assistance as possible in the development of agricultural teaching in the schools of the county; and any other work designed to promote the agricultural rural development of the county. It shall be his duty to keep in touch with all agencies in the state and elsewhere that will enable him to utilize the most improved knowledge in the furtherance of his work.

For the partial maintenance of an agricultural representative and the work done under his direction authority is given the county board to raise, by tax levy, or otherwise, such moneys as may be deemed sufficient to cover the share of the county; provided, however, that in no case shall the amount appropriated by the county for this work be less than one thousand dollars annually. Such moneys shall be disbursed by the county treasurer only upon orders of the county clerk which shall have been approved by the county agricultural representative.

All applications for the appointment and establishment of an agricultural representative must be made prior to December 10 of each year or as soon thereafter as is possible. In such applications do not exceed the maximum limit of counties that can be provided for, the board of regents shall select as soon as possible a properly qualified person to serve in each county in the capacity of agricultural representative. As it is probable that the counties will apply for an agricultural representative that can be supplied it is important that Rock county act promptly if it is to profit by the opportunity offered to it. The Rock County Agricultural Association is interested itself in the project as well as other prominent farmers and business men and it is probable that a strong presentation of their case will be made to the county board when it meets in November.

Gould Construction Company, Contractors, to Receive $12,000.—School Loan to be Made.

Acting on the recommendation of the bond committee, the city council of Beloit ordered the payment of $12,000 to the Gould Construction Company, this being the estimate of the amount due the company for the construction of the new Milwaukee street bridge to its present design. The contract price of the bridge is $37,500. The most expensive and uncertain part of the work is nearly completed. Sheet piling is being driven to the foundations of the central pier. The completion of this and of the abutment base on the east bank will mark the end of all work underneath the water. A wing-wall on the south side of the east arch was cast today. This will provide support for a permanent walk on that side.

The council voted to loan the board of education $5,000 for the payment of school expenses up to the time the appropriation in the next budget becomes available. Application for such a loan was made by the board of education at its last monthly meeting.

Generals in Recent Maneuvers of French Army More Than Score of Miles from Firing Line.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Oct. 18.—An excellent idea of what a modern land battle will be obtained during the French army maneuvers, when General Nicolas Chomer, commanding the 60,000 men of the southern army did not see a regiment during the five days nor on the final day of the battle did he hear a gun.

The general's headquarters on the last day were in a pleasant wayside tavern, twenty-five miles behind the firing lines, which extended about the same length. A large scale map of the region was spread upon a table a row of telephones like that in a New York broker's office was on a wall in the dining room, the tables of the field telegraphers were on the other side of the room, and wireless instruments cracked in an out-building. On the meadow adjoining military aeroplanes arrived and departed, adjutants taking the reports of the aviators.

Three colonels of the staff collated the telephonic, telegraphic, and wire-

SECOND BIGGEST MAN ON ISTHMUS

Col. William C. Gorgas.

Next to Colonel Goethals himself, the biggest man on the Panama canal job and the man who has done most to bring the gigantic task to a successful close is Col. William C. Gorgas. He went to Panama in 1904, when yellow fever and other pestilences bade fair to prevent the construction of the canal. So thorough has been his work that today the canal strip is one of the healthiest places on earth.

less reports and the airman's observations, moving colored broad-headed pins on the map, thus indicating from moment to moment the relative position of their own and the enemy's troops.

General Chomer studied the map attentively. Now and then he gave an order concerning the movement of his troops or discussed with his chief-of-staff the significance of the information just received.

General Paul Pau, the commander-in-chief of the rival northern army, under whom the same circumstances that some fifty miles away, sending his brigades and divisions into action with no more of the tumult of war than is heard during a cable chess match.

Handled with Gloves. Visitors to the prefecture of the department of the Seine are always "handled with gloves," for, according to a peculiar and ancient custom, permission to enter the prefect's room cannot be obtained unless the caller wears gloves.

As soon as a gloveless person enters the reception room, the usher remarks: "Your gloves, please?" If the visitor complies that he has no gloves, the official says: "Then I will find you some." He keeps a large box filled with gloves of every size and shade, from which he provides the visitor with a new pair, for which he is expected to pay the equivalent of fifty cents.

The budget of the prefect of the Seine for 1914 is estimated at an equivalent of $85,000,000, or $2,600,000 more than this year. Among the suggestions for raising the revenue is that a special tax shall be placed on foreign residents living in Paris, based on the rental of their houses or apartments. The American colony is very strong in Paris, and it is recommended that the tax be levied on the number of families.

Aviator Spoiled Play. The success of Roland Garros's recent flight across the Mediterranean Sea has caused the postponement of a play which was shortly to open in one of the Parisian theatres. The whole plot of the piece apparently hinged on the impossibility of flying from France to North Africa, which is now shown to be a fact. The Atlantic Ocean is stated to be substituted for the Mediterranean, but this will entail the rearrangement of such much of the play that it will not be ready for some time.

Will Determine Time. Wireless telegraphy has enabled the French and American authorities to determine within the one-hundredth part of a second the difference in time between Paris and Washington, but experiments are still in progress for the purpose of eliminating all errors.

The French government has sent a commission to Washington to negotiate with the American officers at Arlington the exchange of wireless signals with the Eiffel tower. It is composed of Marcel Simonin, an astronomer of the Observatory of Paris, Capt. A. Carrier of the Colonial Infantry and Naval Lieutenant Gignou. Prof. Henri Abraham of the Sorbonne called later to join the party, with the object of studying with photographic registration wireless signals and experiments in the velocity in the propagation of wireless waves. Later in the year the first party returns to Paris, and will be replaced by Eloi Viennet, an astronomer of the Observatory of Paris and P. Auvary, an ensign of the navy, who have been working in the Eiffel tower.

The American navy department at the same time will send an astronomer from the naval observatory in Washington and one or more officers with the same objects, to Paris.

The officers of both navies will thus work first on one side and then on the other, so as to eliminate as far as possible the errors arising from the personal equation. The astronomical instruments used in the observations will also be employed first on one side and then on the other to correct such slight variations as may be due to mechanical imperfection.

DEDICATE IMPOSING
MONUMENT ON SCENE
BATTLE OF NATIONS

Commemorates Victory of Allies Over Napoleon at Leipzig One Hundred Years Ago.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Leipzig, Germany, Oct. 18.—On the field of the "Battle of the Nations," which just one hundred years ago the defeat of Napoleon by the Allies virtually resulted in the liberation of Germany, there was dedicated today one of the most imposing battle monuments in the world. The ceremony was a notable event in this year of historic anniversaries in Germany.

The sovereigns of Austria, Russia and Sweden, the nations that fought with Prussia to break the power of Napoleon in Germany, Europe, sent their personal representatives, and all the federated princes and mayors of the German Empire were present. Their host is King Frederick August III. of Saxony, sixth in line of descent from that King Frederick August I who fought with Napoleon against the Allies; whose troops deserted to the Allies on the decisive day, and who himself vainly appealing for terms, was taken to Berlin and kept a virtual prisoner for three years.

The structure dedicated is today by far the largest and highest in Europe. It stands just outside of Leipzig, near Probstheida, the village of which the Allies drove Napoleon on October 18, 1813, the decisive day of the "Battle of Nations." The fight had then raged for six days between the Austrians, Prussians, Russians, and Swedes on the one side, and the French, aided by the Saxons and Wurtembergers on the other, when the deciding day came. On the following day Napoleon abandoned the contest, leaving behind 78,000 of his army of 180,000 men, 15,000 of them dead. The Allies at a loss of 51,000 from a total strength of about 300,000, made Germany free from foreign domination to the banks of Rhine.

The idea of a monument on the battlefield was broached in the following year by Ernst Moritz Arndt, and found support from a number of prominent Germans and from a German diplomat. An organization was formed at Leipzig to keep alive the memory of the battle, but a king in captivity furnished grounds for abandoning the movement. The monument idea came up from time to time in the succeeding years, and in 1863, on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle, the foundation stone of a monument was laid.

Then came the wars of 1864, 1866 and 1870-71, and it remained for the German Patriotic Association, formed in Leipzig in 1894, to take the matter up and carry it to successful conclusion. Four years later the necessary money had been raised, a design by Professor Bruno Schmitz had been accepted, and the first sod was turned for the work on October 18, 1898.

The monument stands on a hill about 100 feet above the level of the surrounding country. It is approached by a flight of 110 steps hewn in granite. On the base of the monument at the head of the stairs is an imposing relief, 180 feet long and 60 feet wide, the work of Christian Behrens. In the center of the relief is a heroic figure of Saint Michael. On each side of him Barles with torches hover over a battlefield strewn with dead. Above in letters six feet high, is the motto of the anti-Napoleon warriors: "Gott Mit Uns" (God with us).

The monument rises to a height of nearly 300 feet. It is of reinforced concrete, faced with porphyry. On the ground level is a crypt surrounded by eight elegant stone masks representing states two warriors, twice life size, hold the death watch. Above this crypt is a rotunda, enclosing the Hall of Fame. About the walls are four figures, two male and two female, representing times life size. They represent Courage, Sacrifice, Exaltation and Belief. The figures are the work of Professor Franz Metzner. Around the outside of the domed cupola which surmounts the monument stand twelve gigantic warrior figures. The interiors of three of them are occupied by winding stairs and a balcony, giving access to a balcony near the top of the monument. One striking thing is noted in connection with all the statues; not one represents any prince or sovereign. The protest against Napoleon in 1813 was an uprising of the people against their rulers, and the new monument is a monument of the people. There is not a personal note.

PORTUGUESE NATION

Three Quarters of People Can Neither Read Nor Write According to Latest Census.

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 18.—Just about three-fourths of the Portuguese people can neither read nor write, according to the latest official census, which shows that in Portugal, Madeira and the Azores there was a total population of 5,560,036, of whom 4,439,095 were totally illiterate. There were 2,828,691 men and 3,131,365 women.

The Americans living in Portugal, 1,643, outnumber the Italians, of whom there are 547, and the Germans who have 969, and are nearly as numerous as the French colony with 1,832.

The population of Lisbon is 435,353 and of Oporto 394,009.

FAMOUS BULL FIGHTER
TO RETIRE FROM RING

Madrid, Oct. 18.—The largest crowd that ever attended a bull fight in Spain is expected to turn out tomorrow to witness the final professional appearance of Bombita, the most famous of all toreros. Bombita has decided to retire to private life and enjoy the large fortune that he has piled up out of his earnings in the bull ring. He has been fighting for fifteen years, averaging sixty-five fights a year, and he has killed, in all, 3,300 bulls.

ECCENTRIC MANNERS OF AMERICA PUZZLE
JAPANESE DIPLOMAT

Count Okuma is Hopeful Nevertheless That Problems Will Be Settled in Time.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokyo, Japan, Oct. 18.—Discussion of the American-Japanese controversy gave occasion recently to Count Shigenobu Okuma, former Japanese Foreign Minister, to express his impressions of American temperament.

The problem was a vast one, he declared—more far-reaching than is commonly thought by the Japanese people. It was a problem whose solution depended upon patience and endurance as well as diplomatic tact. Japan, which has regained after a long struggle the right of decision in her own affairs, must now acquire the power to have a say among the great nations on all questions involving her interests.

Meantime the United States will remain a difficult problem, he said, not only to Japan, but to the whole of Europe. He added: "Great Britain has been time and again annoyed by the haughty and eccentric manner in which America behaves herself. The arbitration and Panama tolls problems are the latest illustrations."

The veteran statesman continued: "What makes the matter more

IN WASHINGTON'S DIPLOMATIC SET

Countess de la Rocca.

Countess de la Rocca, wife of the charge d'affaires of the French embassy in Washington during the absence of Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, is a popular and talented woman, and the social affairs of the embassy are in capable hands during the absence of Mme. Jusserand. Countess de la Rocca and her husband recently entertained the French and American exposition commissioners, who are in this country arranging for the participation of their country in the coming exposition.

troublesome is the tempestuous and irascible mood of the American people. One moment they rise and rage like madmen and in the next drop to nonchalance. For instance, the California problem seems already to have sunk down to the lethargic level. You never know the vagaries of the American psychology."

However, Count Okuma is brightly optimistic and believes that Japan and America will eventually settle all their problems even if it takes a century, for both are united in strong friendship and common interest.

Decrease in Divorces. One of the most striking features of the new census report of Tokyo is the rapid decrease of divorces. In 1904 there were 20 divorces to every 100 marriages. In 1911 the percentage had fallen to 16 in 100.

This decline is attributed to an important change that is slowly but surely taking place in the family system of Japan. The growth of individualism and the greater opportunities for the average citizen to advance on a basis of intelligence and capacity have affected the family system so much that certain distinct results are already noted.

Greater freedom of choice is permitted among the young people and the influence of the mother-in-law over the new household has considerably diminished. Until Western influences began to affect the Japanese social system the newly wedded bride always entered the home of her mother-in-law and obeyed her in every action. This state of affairs often led and does lead to discord and divorce. But the new ideas of the daughter-in-law of her rights and the tendency for new couples to establish a home by themselves has changed all this.

Tokyo Needs Transportation. Although Tokyo is said to be almost as large in area as London, its population is according to the latest figures, only 1,400,000.

As it is in extent Tokyo is constantly spreading out and the question of transportation looms up as a tremendous problem for the near future. The modern electric car system supplies the great masses with a means of transport, but it is believed some substitute must be found for the old-time picturesque rickshaw which requires such a length of time to travel between distant points. It is not unlikely that the electric motorbus of the great European cities may find its way to Tokyo as a solution of the problem.

Tokyo's growth has made other rapid changes and the most notable is in the cost of living. It is about three times as high as it was ten or fifteen years ago. Newly arriving foreigners who come to live in Japan are astounded. They find that the cost of living in Japan is as high as in Paris or London, though the absence of theatres and restaurants and the general paucity of amusements reduce the possibilities of expenditure for the luxuries of life.

Japanese Mob Spirit. The difference between a Japanese and other mobs was demonstrated during the popular manifestations to demand the sending of armed forces to China to punish the Chinese for attacking Japanese in Nanking.

The gathering was certainly more picturesque than a Western mob and it balanced at times between the tragic and the farcical. At one end of the vast Hibiya Park the huge bandstand was jammed with frenzied orators, with in front undulating masses of Japanese in flowing, artistic robes, almost all wearing wooden sandals over bare feet and the great majority jauntily swinging walking sticks as they sauntered back and forth to hear the hoarse-voiced agitators and to gossip over the events of the day. Occasionally they would stop to stare curiously at the few foreigners present.

The slightest incident served to agitate this vast concourse and send it rushing down the field. A pioneer shoe making the clatter of a force of cavalry. Hundreds climbed trees and, hanging their wooden shoes across the boughs, took in the show from their points of vantage. A pioneer suffragette dragged herself to the bandstand and urged the help of Japanese women to the cause of the meeting.

Even sheets of rain failed to shake the spirit of the mob, and all afternoon, must now acquire the power to have a say among the great nations on all questions involving her interests.

The demonstration indicates the tendency of the masses to have a greater voice in the doings of the empire. It was an illustration of the growth of democracy.

Watch for Valuable Paper.

Not a scrap of paper is permitted to be carried out in the United States treasury department until it has passed the censorship of the official examiners of the waste baskets. For years they have been doing this work, and have saved the government the amounts of their salaries many times over. Some time back one of them found in a waste-basket a $10,000 United States coupon bond.

His Opinion. "With the corset slaying women by the hundreds and the Rum Demon mowing down men like a pestilence," remarked the erratic thinker, "it is strange that there are still plenty of the former always ahead of you at the general delivery window at the postoffice, and an overabundance of the latter who need $10 till the first of the month."—Judge.

To Clean a Sponge. For sponges that have become almy, it is found by treating them in the following manner makes them good as new: Get a basin, fill it with boiling water and a little washing soda, then put the sponge into this and leave it for several hours. When this is finished, rinse in plain hot water, afterwards rinsing in cold. Leave the sponge in the cold water until you are ready to use it again.

PONDEROUS PERSONAGES
NEBUCHADNEZZAR

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Nebuchadnezzar was a king of Babylon, who flourished intermittently about 2,500 years ago. At present Babylon consists of a deserted stone pile, in a mournful region where rain falls only during leap years, but at that time it was a great and enterprising city with walls 100 feet thick and a night which would make New York seem straight-laced and dull in comparison.

Nebuchadnezzar according to the pictures which were carved in Babylon by the leading magazine illustrators of that day, was a tall king in a long silk dressing gown, and a crown of twisted manila rope worth 4 cents a pound for junk before he was through with him.

This worried Nebuchadnezzar so much that a great change came over him, and for seven years he roamed about the fields, eating hay and declaiming the services of a barber or manicurist. When he recovered he was passive and nervous, and started violently whenever Daniel's name was mentioned.

Nebuchadnezzar was a great builder. He was also the greatest gardener of antiquity and the hanging gardens of Babylon were more famous than Central Park is today. But he lost his greatest chance for fame and riches when he wandered for years through the fields, the original breakfast food man, and didn't so much as invent a name for his diet and put it on the market.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A YOUNG girl from a small town, who had always had a great interest in Society—the kind you spell with a capital S—but who had never come any closer to it than reading newspaper accounts of its doings, married a man with some money and went to a fashionable hotel at a famous watering place for his honeymoon.

She has chosen that particular hotel because she had been told it was always thronged with the wealthiest and most fashionable people from all over the country. And she wanted an opportunity to see with her own eyes some of these splendid creatures of whom she read so long.

When she came home all her friends, especially those who had shared her avid interest in society columns, were eager to hear about her experiences.

And this is what she told them: "The hotel was magnificent and it was a very beautiful place, but I must say I was disappointed in the people. I had expected to see much splendid looking people, and they were really quite commonplace, just like the folks we meet here at home. Were they splendidly dressed? Yet, a few of them. But a great many of them wore quite ordinary clothes, and some even had frumpy things that I wouldn't want to wear myself."

Her auditors were astounded. Was she sure Society with a Capital S—really went to that hotel? They ventured to ask.

Indeed it did, she told them indignantly. Hadn't she read several of the most sacred names right in the hotel register?

Now what do you think of that? Real Society—with the biggest kind of a Capital S—really looking just like other people.

It's unbelievable, isn't it? Why I thought they were wonderful creatures, so distinguished and beautiful that they seemed like another race of beings. Didn't you?

To drop sarcasm, isn't it rather amusing, this notion that we all hold in some degree that there is such a tremendous difference between Society people and us humble middle-class folk; or, to take another angle on the question, between us respectable middle-class folks and those at the lower end of the scale?

Sometimes, in spite of myself, I will be snobbish enough to look down on some other human being; and again, I will be snobbish enough to crane my neck to look up to some wealthy acquaintance—after all, there is no ennobling sense of brotherhood of the men and women who by their self-abasement make condescension possible. Then, like a flash of light there comes to me the realization that there is no such vast difference between human beings as we imagine.

If we had minds big enough to see things in the large, we should see how short the whole scale of difference is.

David Graham Phillips, in one of his most serious and thoughtful of his characters say the following in regard to the variations and degrees of human capability: I think the same words would apply to all the variations between human beings: "There was a time (says the Successful man) when I despised incapables; then I pitied them; but latterly I have felt for them the sympathetic sense of brotherhood. Are we not all incapables? Differing only in degree, and how slightly then if we look at ourselves without vanity, like practice sketches put upon the slate by nature's learning and impatiently sponged away."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. To prevent made mustard from drying and caking in the mustard pot add a little salt when making.

A few drops of alcohol rubbed on the inside of lamp chimneys will remove all traces of smoke when water will not.

When burning vegetable refuse in the stove or furnace put a handful of salt into the fire with it and there will be no unpleasant odor.

When making "thickening" for gravies, sauces, etc., use half flour and half cornstarch.

THE TABLE. Apple Pudding—Beat the yolks of six eggs with two cups of sugar, add one quart of milk and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Rub one pint of stewed apples through a sieve, add one-half cupful of butter to the hot apples, then mix with the milk and eggs, pour into a deep pudding dish and bake for one-half hour. Whip the whites of three eggs stiff with three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, spread over the pudding and brown slightly in the oven. Serve cold with sugar and cream.

Pancakes—Sift four ounces of flour into a basin, gradually add one gill of cream, one gill of milk and four well-beaten eggs. Cook in a hot, well-buttered fry pan. When all hot, well-buttered frying pan. When are done spread with honey, roll up and serve.

Danish Pudding. Put one-half cupful of tapioca into a cucurbit with three cupfuls of water and cook until transparent. Then add one-half cupful of sugar, a large pinch of salt, one cupful of lemon juice and one cupful of currant jelly. Mix thoroughly, pour into a wet mold and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

Creole Rice. Into one quart of boiling water drop one cupful of rice that has been thoroughly washed, and one cupful of salt. Stir constantly till boiling is resumed, then do not stir again. When the rice is done remove from the fire and drain off all the water. Place the rice in the oven for ten minutes.

Date Pie. One-half pound of stoned dates, one cupful of water, two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one egg, one tablespoonful of orange extract, pastry, and two cupfuls of milk. Cook the dates in water till tender and rub through a sieve. Add the cornstarch mixed with the milk, the egg well beaten, and the orange extract. Cook and stir in a double boiler till thoroughly thickened, then plate and beat until white and yolk are well blended; add two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Dip croquettes or whatever is to be made first in crumbs, then thoroughly cover with egg, drain a minute and then slip again in crumbs. This may stand an hour and dipped again and set in a cool place until ready to be fried.

When done drain on blotting paper or a soft towel, which absorbs all the grease.

Chicken Croquettes. Materials—Chopped, cooked chicken, one pint; milk, one-half pint; butter, two tablespoonfuls; flour, four tablespoonfuls; chopped parsley, one teaspoonful; grated onion, salt and pepper, a dash of cayenne, fat.

Directions—Clean and separate the chicken as for a fricassee. Put into the stew pan and cover with boiling water, boiling five minutes, then simmer until tender, about one and a half or two hours. At the end of the first hour add one small onion, a dozen cloves, two bay leaves, one teaspoonful of salt, a fourth teaspoonful of celery seed or a little fresh chopped parsley if you have it. When done cool the chicken and chop.

Put the milk into the double boiler, rub butter and flour together, adding a little hot milk so as to pour into the boiling milk in the boiler, stir all the seasonings to the meat and then to the sauce. Stir until well blended. Cool and make into pyramidal shaped croquettes, dip in bread crumbs and roll in beaten egg and one tablespoonful of warm water mixed, and then in bread crumbs again, being careful to cover the whole croquette. Fry in smoking hot oil until a rich brown, drain on blotting paper. Serve on a hot dish with a piece of parsley in the top.

All meat croquettes are made as above, changing seasonings to suit the meat. A pair of sweetbreads cooked three-fourths hours, chopped, and added to the chicken make them more delicate. Veal may also be used, five pounds of veal from the leg and one chicken will make about seventy-five croquettes.

Plain Doughnuts. Materials—Sugar, three-quarters cup; sour milk, one-half cup; flour, (about) two cups; butter, one-half tablespoonful; soda, one-quarter teaspoonful; cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful; baking powder, one teaspoonful; nutmeg, one-half teaspoonful; one egg.

Directions—Sift all the dry ingredients together. Beat the egg and add it to the milk. Add the butter, softened over hot water. Mix all well together and stand in a cold place for an hour or over night. Roll out one-half inch thick, cut out with a doughnut cutter and fry as directed in deep fat.

DISHES WORTH TRYING.

When making gravy in a pan in which the meat has been roasted, take out the surplus fat, sift in the flour, and when well blended add milk or water.

Cake From Bread Sponge.—Use two cups of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs and a teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and soda. Over this pour a cup of boiling water; when cool add the bread sponge, one cup, flour to make a soft dough, and bake at once as you would any cake.

Cucumber Salad.—Slice cucumbers and an onion together, sprinkle with salt and let stand two hours. Drain and add sour cream, a little vinegar and pepper, and serve.

Ever-Ready Pie Crust.—Mix together a half cup of lard to a cup and a half of flour, with a teaspoon of salt; in this proportion double the amount or multiply by four. Mix the flour and lard well together, put into a covered bowl and stand away in a cool place until needed. Then take out the desired amount for a pie or pies, add cold water and the pastry is soon ready.

Popcorn Wafers.—Put through a meat chopper the well buttered popcorn, and stir it into boiled frosting, heap on wafers and bake in a quick oven until brown.

Take two cups of sugar, one-half a cup of molasses, five cups of flour, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one-half tablespoon of cloves, half a tablespoon of nutmeg, one teaspoon of soda and one pound of chopped raisins. Mix the spices with the flour and bake in bread tins. It feeds the cake keeps better.

This cake improves with age and is better at three months than the day after it is made.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Please tell me what I can do to darken my hair so it will stay. You had some remedy in the paper a few weeks ago, but I've lost it.

(2)—How can I wash a light blue dress with mescaline for collar and cuffs?

(3)—How can I stop my hair from falling out?

(4)—Please give me a recipe for candy not too expensive.

CONSTANT READER. (1)—Get four ounces walnut skins, beat to a pulp, add sixteen ounces pure alcohol. Let stand eight days, strain and apply to hair with a small brush.

(2)—I should think the best way to wash this would be to make a suds of warm water and a good white soap, with a handful of salt (to preserve the color). Let the dress soak in this, rinsing it up and down several times and rubbing between the hands any particular soiled spot. Do not rub the mescaline. Finally rinse in clear warm water, until all the soap is out and the dress appears clean, gently squeeze out most of the water and hang up to dry.

(3)—See that your general health is in good order. Massage the scalp well every day and rub into it a little coal oil. Keep all brushes and combs scrupulously clean.

(4)—Home Made Caramels—White of one egg; mix in enough confectioners' sugar to make it stiff, flavor with vanilla and roll into small balls, lay on butter paper and press any hands any particular soiled spot. Can color with fruit coloring and make any flavor; very nice dipped in melted chocolate.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Is it nice for a boy to smoke in the presence of a young lady? I have been going with a young man a year.

(2)—We went to a picnic and he in our presence became intoxicated.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

A few points to remember when buying your meat is that the most nutritious meats need not necessarily be the most expensive.

That if you know the cuts of meat you will get better service, better meat.

That the most economical rib-roast is the sixth rib; the most juicy, tender, and high priced rib is the eleventh and twelfth.

That a standing rib-roast is better than a rolled rib roast.

That porter-house is the most expensive steak.

That hip-bone sirloin is the best cut of sirloin; it costs no more than the poorest cut.

That a roast is delicious and costs much less than a rib roast.

That chuck makes excellent pot-roasts and is cheaper than the round.

That steaks and beef loaves from the neck and chuckers are cheaper than from the prime and flank.

That the brisket, plate and navel are the best for corned and boiling.

That tender meat has short fibers and not much connective tissue, while tough meat has long fibers and much connective tissue.

There is a great difference in tender and tough meats. Right here in one of our hotels a few days back a strong knight of the Grip broke a fork in vainly trying to sever a steak. Tender meat is quickly cooked by dry heat, searing it first to keep in the juices. When almost cooked the temperature should be lowered. Tough meat, suitable for boiling and pot-roasts, is cooked long by moist heat, on a slow fire; sometimes seared, sometimes not.

There are different roasts to be had from beef. The rump is very good and much cheaper than the prime rib roast; that costs for the average family about $1.25, while a rump roast of the same size can be bought for 80 cents. The rump makes a large roast and is a fine, juicy piece of boneless meat. It also makes a very nice pot-roast.

If you want a beef-rib-roast, ask for the sixth rib, as it contains the most lean, the least fat of any. As a rib roast is valuable according to the lean meat it contains the sixth rib leads the rest in the question of economy.

The eleventh and twelfth ribs have a greater tenderness and are much higher priced, but the sixth rib with proper cooking is satisfactory from more than one point of view.

At the request of the manager of this paper, I am to run several Talks on Meat, its value and price. It might be a wise plan to save them.

Youthful Diplomat. Harry is small but diplomatic. The other day he wanted his mother to come out on the veranda with him. The mother, being busy, refused, and Harry invented various expedients, from informing her that he was tired and lonely to complaining of a pain in his tummy, in the hope of inducing her to change her mind. Finally he called sweetly: "Mother, dear, I don't want you to stay out here if you don't want to, but I do want to kiss you very much." Mother came out.

THIS WOMAN HAD MUCH PAIN WHEN STANDING

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made Her a Well Woman.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—"I have always had great confidence in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I found it very good for organic troubles and recommend it highly. I had displacement, backache and pains when standing on my feet for any length of time, when I began to take the medicine, but I am in fine health now. If I ever have those troubles again I will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. ED. FERRON, 816 High St., Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had organic displacement, and bearing down pains and backache and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. A WAY OUT

A Resident of Janesville Shows the Way.

There's one effective way to relieve kidney backache. Liniment and plasters may relieve it; But they seldom reach the cause. Backache is cause to suspect the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys. Janesville people back them up. Read a case of it.

Mrs. Eliza Johnson, 118 N. Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble and rheumatic pains for ten or twelve years. My kidneys seemed to get clogged and did not filter the poison from my system. I got weak and almost helpless at times. My joints swelled and were very sore. It seemed that I could get nothing that would relieve me. Finally I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. I was soon feeling better and my kidneys gradually got stronger. All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I recommended them two years ago, holds good. I have just as much confidence in them now as I did then. I often tell other people to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I know they are the best kidney remedy to be had."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Where There's A Will

By Mary Roberts Rinehart
Illustrated by Edgar Dorr Smith

Copyright, 1913, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

I was pretty well ashamed when I got in the springhouse and sat down in the dark. I kept saying over and over to myself, so I'd not forget, "to-night, not tomorrow," but I couldn't remember what was to be tonight. I was sleepy, too, and my legs were cold and numb. I remember going into the pantry for a steamer rug, and sitting down there for a minute, with the rug around my knees before I started to the house. And that is all I do remember.

I was awakened by a terrible hammering in the top of my head. I reached out for the glass of water, that I always put beside my bed at night, and I touched a door-knob instead. Then I realized that the knocking wasn't all in my head. There was a sort of steady movement of feet on the other side of the door, with people talking and laughing. And above it all rose the steady knock-knock of somebody beating on tin.

"Can't do it." It was the bishop's voice. "I am convinced that nothing but dynamite will open this tin of lobster."

"Just a moment, bishop," Mr. Thornburn's voice and the clink of bottles, "I have a can opener somewhere. You'll find the sauce à la Newburg."

"Here, somebody, a glass, quick! A bottle's broken!"

"Did anybody remember to bring salt and pepper?"

"Dear Mr. Thornburn!" It sounded like Miss Cobb. "Think of thinking of all this!"

"The credit is not mine, dear lady," Mr. Thornburn said. "Where the deuce is that corker? No, dear lady, man makes his own destiny, but his birth date remains beyond his control."

"Ladies and gentlemen," somebody said, "to Mr. Thornburn's birthday beyond his control!"

There was the clink of glasses, but I had remembered what it had been that I was to remember. And now it was too late. I was trapped in the pantry of my springhouse and Mr. Pierce was probably asleep. I clutched my aching head and tried to think. I was roused by hearing somebody say that Miss Jennings had no glass, and by steps nearing the pantry. I had just time to slip the bolt. "Pantry's locked!" said a voice. "Drat that Minnie!" somebody said. "The girl's a nuisance." "Hush!" Miss Summers said. "She's probably in there now—taking down what we say and what we eat. Convinced us out of our own mouths." I held my breath and the knob rattled. Then they found a glass for Miss Patty and forgot the pantry. Under cover of the next burst of noises I tried the pantry window, but it was frozen shut. Nothing but a hammer would have loosened it. I began to dig at it with a wire hairpin, but I hadn't much hope.

The fun in the springhouse was getting fast and furious. Miss Summers was leaning against the pantry door and I judged that most of the men in the room were around her, as usual. I put my ear to the panel of the door, and I could pretty nearly see what was going on. They were toasting Mr. Thornburn, and getting hungrier every minute as the supper was put out on the card tables.

"To the bottle!" somebody said. "In infancy, the milk bottle; in our prime, the wine bottle; in our dotage, the pill bottle."

Mr. von Inwald came over and stood beside Miss Summers, and I could hear every whisper.

"I have good news for you," she said in an undertone.

"Oh! And what?"

"Sh! You may recall," she said, "the series of notes, letters, epistles, with which you have been honoring me lately?"

"How could I forget? They were written in my heart's blood!"

"Indeed!" Her voice lifted its eyebrows, so to speak. "Well, somebody got in my room last night and stole I dare say a pint of your heart's blood. They're gone!"

He was pretty well upset, as he might be, and she stood by and listened to the things he said, which, if they were as bad in English as they sounded in German, I wouldn't like to write down. And when he cooled down and condensed, as you may say, into English, he said Miss Jennings must have seen the letters, for she would hardly speak to him. And Miss Summers said she hoped Miss Jennings had—she was too nice a girl to treat shamefully.

And after he had left her there alone, I heard a sort of scratching on the door behind Miss Summers' back, and then something being shoved under the door. I stooped down and picked it up. It was a key!

I struck a match, and I saw by the tag, that it was the one to the old doctor's rooms. I knew right off what it meant. Mr. Pierce had gone to bed, or pretended to throw them off the track and Thornburn had locked him in! Thornburn hadn't taken any chances. He knew the influence Mr. Pierce had over them all, and he and his champagne and tin cans had to get in their work before Mr. Pierce had another chance at them.

I had no time to wonder how Miss Summers knew I was in the pantry. I tried the window again, but it wouldn't work. Somebody in the springhouse was shouting, "Hot butter blue beans, please come to supper!" and I could hear them crowding around the tables. I worked frantically with the hairpin, and just then two shadowy figures outside slipped around the corner of the building. It was Mr. Pierce and Doctor Barnes!

I darted back and put my ear to the door, but they did not come in at once. Mr. Thornburn made a speech, saying how happy he was that they were all well and able to go back to civilization again, where the broiled lobster flourished like a green bay tree and the prune and the cabbage were unknown.

There was loud applause, and then Senator Biggs cleared his throat.

"Ladies and gentlemen, distinguished fellow guests," he began, "I suggest a toast to the autocrat of Hope Springs. It is the only blot on the evening, that, owing to the exigencies of the occasion, he cannot be with us. Securely fastened in his room, he is now sleeping the sleep that follows a stomach attuned to prunes, a mind attuned to rule."

"Eat, drink and be merry!" somebody said, "for to-morrow you die!"

There was a swish and rustle, as if a woman got up in a hurry.

"Do you mean," said Miss Patty's clear voice, "that you have dared to lock Mr. Pier—Mr. Carter in his room?"

"My dear young lady," several of them began, but she didn't give them time.

"It is outrageous, infamous!" she stormed. "I didn't need to see her to know how she looked. How dare you! Suppose the building should catch fire!"

"Fire!" somebody said in a bewildered voice. "My dear young lady—"

"Don't 'my dear young lady' me," she said angrily. "Father, Bishop, will you stand for this? Why, he may jump out the window and hurt himself! Give me the key!"

Miss Julia's fingers were beating a tattoo behind her, as if she was afraid I might miss it.

"If he jumps out he probably will hurt himself. It is impossible to release him now, Miss Jennings, but if you insist we can have a mattress placed under the window."

"Thanks, Thornburn. It won't be necessary." The voice came from the door, and a hush fell on the party. I slipped my bolt and peeped out. Framed in the doorway was Mr. Pierce, with Doctor Barnes looking over his shoulder.

The people in the springhouse were aghast. That's the only word for it. Craven, somebody suggested later, and they were that, too. They smiled sickly grins and tried to be defiant, and most of them tried to put down whatever they held in their hands and to look innocent.

Mr. Pierce never smiled. He wouldn't let them speak a word in defense or explanation. He simply lined them up as he did at gym, and sent them, one by one, to the corner with whatever they had in their hands.

He made Mr. Jennings give up a bottle of anchovies that he'd stuffed in his pocket, and the bishop had to come over with the cheese.

And when it was all over, he held the door open and they went back to the house. They fairly ducked past him in the doorway, although he hadn't said a dozen words. It was a rout. The backbone of the rebellion was broken. I knew that never again would the military discipline of Hope Springs be threatened. Thornburn might as well pack and go. It was Mr. Pierce's day.

Mr. von Inwald was almost the last. He stood by, sneering, with an open bottle of olives in his hand, watching the others go out. Mr. Pierce held the door open and eyed him.

"I'll trouble you to put that bottle with the others in the corner," Mr. Pierce said sternly.

They stood glaring at each other angrily.

"And if I refuse?"

"You know the rules. If you refuse, there is a hotel at Finleyville."

Mr. von Inwald glanced past Mr. Pierce to where Doctor Barnes stood behind him, with his cauliflower ear and his pugilist's shoulders. Then he looked at the bottle in his hand, and from it to Miss Patty, standing haughtily by.

"I have borne much for you, Patricia," he said, "but I refuse to be bullied any longer. I shall go to the hotel at Finleyville, and I shall take the little olives with me." He smiled unpleasantly at Mr. Pierce, whose face did not relax.

He walked jauntily to the door and turned, flourishing the bottle. "The land of the free and the home of the brave!" he sneered, raising the bottle in the air. Standing jeering in the doorway, he bowed to Miss Patty and Mr. Pierce, and put an olive into his mouth.

But instantly he made a terrible face, and clapped a hand just in front of his left ear. He stood there a moment, his face distorted—then he darted into the night, and I never saw him again.

"Mumps!" Doctor Barnes ejaculated, and stood staring after him from the steps.

Who Invented Chess?

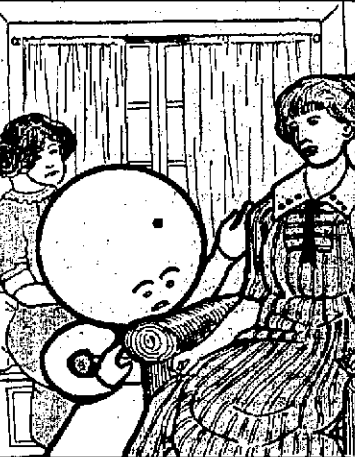

The honor of inventing chess has been claimed by at least fourteen nations, and a variety of famous persons have been mentioned as sole inventor, ranging from Japhet and Shem to King Solomon and Aristotle. It is, however, generally agreed that Euclid got the game from the Arabic, "checkmate" being a corruption of "Shah mat" ("the king is dead").

Origin of Term "Dean."

The word dean, as applied to the dean of the diplomatic corps, or dean of a faculty, was derived from the Latin decem, ten, and its original sense was a chief of ten; an early dictionary defines it as "an ecclesiastical magistrate who hath power over ten canons at the least." Gradually it came to mean the head of any organized body, the oldest in service.

Why Shouldn't Janesville Babies Win Honors In Panama-Pacific Exposition Beauty Contest

THREE CHICAGO BABIES ENTERED IN COMPETITION.

Will some Janesville baby win the grand prize at the national and international baby contests to be held at the Temple of Childhood, which is to be one of the main features of the Panama-Pacific International exposition opening Feb. 20, 1915, closing Dec. 4 of the same year? Every section of the country is to have an equal chance to win the coveted prizes and the winners of the American contest will compete with beautiful children of other nations.

R. H. Barlow has been appointed official photographer of Janesville and cities in the vicinity will make careful selections of the children in this community before sending the negatives to be passed upon by the judges controlling the state contest, to be placed in competition at the Temple of Childhood. According to the rules the child must not be over twelve years of age, and only one picture is allowed from a family and group pictures are barred.

As it would be a physical impossibility to display the millions of children's photographs direct from the local photographers, separate state contests will be held, the winners of which will be entered first in the national beauty contest and then in the international competition. The board to pass judgment will be appointed by the officials in charge of the Temple of Childhood, including such persons as the governors of the state, commissioners from the state to the exposition, government officers and exposition officials. The parents of the child selected whose picture is to be placed at the Temple will receive certificates of their child's entry.

among the most perfect babies found in the states and nations. The reason why the Temple of Childhood will be erected at the Panama-Pacific exposition is to represent the child life of the world of this age. It will be an honorable memorial for the children having their pictures entered to have their names enrolled at the Temple of Childhood. While it is realized that only a small percent of the population can attend this exposition and it is difficult to gather a large number of parents to a contest, it is hoped that the field of endeavor along children's welfare may not be limited to the exposition, but the parents interested will awaken in their own homes.

How trying is that haughty gent who's all swelled up with self content each blessed minute; who arrogantly states you're down and seems to say: "I own the town, and all that's in it!" He struts along the village streets and doubtless thinks the folks he meets are him adoring; he might come down two pegs or three if he could hear them bitterly his folly scoring. No man should swagger till he's shown he occupies a place alone, won by his labors; till he has gained such great renown he has excuse for looking down upon his neighbors. And men who win that sort of thing have too much sense to strut, by jing, they're meek and humble; they know that those who swell around with eyes too big to see the ground will some day stumble. Not wealth or fame, or boundless power should swell our bosoms for an hour—we are but mortals; the sexton's bells toll us all at last, and when our little jaunt is past, the gray world chortles. The Toll of Death the Panama Laborer Pays to Dynamite

The Appalling Loss of Life Through the Use of Dynamite - Caused By Premature Explosions and Inability On the Part of the Average Canal Laborer To Understand the Real Danger of Handling It.

WAY back in the days of the Pagnas it was the custom to sacrifice a human life just before the erection of a great building or when some colossal project was about to be undertaken. Today great enterprises pay their toll to death in a different way, but they pay it just the same, for the records show that even the building of a sky scraper almost invariably costs the life of one or more of the workmen who are engaged in its erection.

Explosives Stored on the Edge of Culebra Cut quantity of explosives has to be used at the Ancon quarry, for the rock needed in the concrete at the Miraflores and Pedro Miguel locks is quarried there. The rock is loosened by dynamite and then excavated by steam shovels and loaded upon cars and sent down to the crusher plant. Premature explosions of dynamite have occurred at the quarry several times and at least a dozen men have been killed and scores injured.

Many Fatalities in 1908.

Forty deaths from dynamite explosions were recorded for the year 1908. This does not include the individual fatalities and shows only the death rate from unpreventable causes. The worst of these occurred at Bas Obispo on December twelfth, 1908, when there was a premature explosion of twenty-two tons of dynamite in Culebra Cut with the result that twenty-six men were killed and forty injured. On May twenty-second, 1908, lightning caused the explosion of twenty-six tons, killing two men and wounding several. In speaking of the death-dealing occurrences one of the members of the Canal Commission recently declared that the most rigid rules had been made in reference to the handling and preparation of explosives for blasting, that all sorts of tests had been made to prevent premature explosions, with the result that the accidental deaths from all causes had been reduced to ninety-one in 1912, against one hundred and twelve in 1911.

Methods of Exploding Dynamite.

The method of exploding dynamite in Culebra Cut is rather interesting. Two kinds of drills are used—tripod and well, both of which are operated by compressed air. This is supplied from a ten-inch compressed air main on the west bank of the Cut, which is supplied by three batteries of air compressors placed at equal distance along nine miles of the Cut. The holes drilled are fourteen feet apart and the depth drilled is usually about twenty-seven feet. The holes are loaded with forty-five per cent potassium nitrate dynamite in such quantities as is necessary for the character of the rock to be blasted. They are connected in parallel and fired by means of a current from the electric light plant—the firing being done at noon time while the laborers are not at work or after five o'clock in the evening. A warning whistle is blown for five minutes before the blasting begins. The greatest number of drills used at any one time in the Cut was three hundred and seventy-seven, of which one hundred and fifty-six were well and two hundred and twenty-one tripod. With this number about ninety miles of holes can be drilled in a single month. It is estimated that a pound of dynamite has been used to every cubic yard of material blasted in Culebra Cut.

Curious Freaks of Explosives.

Whenever an accident occurs there is, of course, a thorough investigation and some rather curious freaks in the working of explosives have been discovered at these investigations. For instance, on one occasion the dynamite gang was preparing to set off about twenty-two tons in the Cut. All of the holes had been charged except one, and the leading men were at work on this when the whole thing suddenly went off and dynamite took its toll from some of the best men in the squad. It was first thought that the current passing through the wire from the generator had induced a current in the fuse wires which had not been connected with the generator when the explosion occurred, but on investigating it was found that the fuse wire was so small that the generator current did not induce sufficient current in the fuse wires to set off the charge when the two wires were only an inch apart, so, of course, some other cause had to be found. Finally someone suggested that the water in the holes be examined, and when this was done it was found that this was slightly acidulated and consequently acted upon the paper of the dynamite cartridges and liberated the nitro-glycerine. It was learned that the first hole had been charged nearly a week before the last hole was reached, which gave the acidulated water plenty of time to reach the nitro-glycerine. A charge had been exploded on the opposite side of the Cut and this conclusion had been sufficient to set off the nitro-glycerine after it had been liberated by the action of the water. It was found by experiments that the acidulated water could not liberate the nitro-glycerine unless it had several days to act. This investigation resulted in an order being issued by Colonel Goethals to the effect that all charges must be exploded within twenty-four hours after they are loaded. The rule has been strictly adhered to and since that time there has not been a single premature explosion of dynamite in the Cut. The temperature of the holes must be taken before the dynamite is placed therein. After a premature discharge a year or two ago it was found that heat was generated in the holes by the oxidation of material below the surface when exposed to the air by the drilling of holes for explosive charges. This rule, too, has aided in the prevention of sudden blow-ups.

How Dynamite Is Stored.

In the early days of the Canal building the dynamite car was run directly into the Cut and unloaded there, but after awhile this became dangerous owing to the number of dirt and sand trains which were continuously passing in and fro in the big ditch. At present it is stored in houses along the top of the Cut. Red flags are placed all around these houses and they are guarded by men besides. A large amount is stored in the house near Empire. At this point the dynamite squad carry boxes containing fifty pounds down a flight of one hundred and ninety-seven steps and then across the Cut to the opposite side. They must avoid the dirt trains and be careful not to stumble over the numerous railway tracks or to trip over the rocks which are all about.

Loading the Holes with Dynamite

Narrow Escapes.

On one occasion the writer was standing on the Empire bridge when crosses the Cut watching the men filling the holes preparatory to the noon hour blast. The men were carrying the dynamite down the steps when one of them stumbled. Two men standing nearby started to run, but the man grabbed the handrail and steadied himself, still holding the box of dynamite on his shoulder. He must have frightened his companions for they all read a few moments being careful to set the boxes down very carefully. At another time farther down the Cut one of the men carrying dynamite started to croak. As he did so a dirt train howled in sight and stopped directly in front of him. The dynamite man was in a hurry, so he climbed on one of the cars and was about to get off on the other side when the train started. This meant, perhaps, being carried miles away from his work. He was afraid to jump with the box on his shoulder so he calmly tossed the box off the car and jumped after it. A cry of horror went up from those who saw it, but nothing happened, so the negro picked up his dynamite and went over to the holes. Here he was met by the foreman, who gave him a lecture which he is likely to remember.

Out in the Pacific channel they are blasting the rock under water by use of a floating drill board. This has three huge drillers which make the holes, and after these holes have been prepared for the blast the drill board moves back and the explosive is set off by electricity and dynamite exploded under water does not, however, make an especially spectacular appearance. Of course, there is a great splashing of water but rocks rarely fly about as they do when it is exploded on land.
